The course is designed to teach lifesaving skills required to be both a team member and a team leader in either an in-hospital or out-of-hospital setting. Time is often short, and decisions have to be made quickly during such emergencies. All hospital personnel involved in the care of emergency and critically ill patients, therefore, need to master these skills and review their knowledge constantly.

Course material BLS Provider Manuals will be provided. This course is designed to be practical with a minimum number of lectures, emphasis being placed on "hands on" training of the individual skills required. Resuscitation requires a team effort in which the role of team leader and team members are essential. These roles will be practiced in simulated scenarios.
